

Bird-friendly glass coloring sheet

Birdability wants to help make the birding community and the outdoors safe for birders with disabilities and other health concerns. We can also help keep birds safe when they are migrating and going about their day-to-day lives!

There are many obstacles and threats that birds encounter. Glass windows on buildings, like homes and schools, is one of them. The reflective nature of glass makes it challenging for birds to see. Instead, they see the trees and bushes reflected in it! They often fly right into it, thinking it was a place to rest.

Nearly 1 billion birds die each year from window strikes! Putting decals, stickers, tape and other things on the windows is one of the simplest ways to help make birds aware of the glass. You can help make birders safer!

Directions

1. Print these pages.
2. Color in the birds. These birds are White-breasted Nuthatches, which is the bird in the Birdability logo. It is a grey and white bird, but you can make yours any colors you wish!
3. Cut them out.
4. Stick them to windows with the white side facing out and your coloring facing in.
5. Repeat while spacing out nuthatches over the entire window.
6. Send us a photo! Email info@birdability.org or tag @birdability on social media!
